

HAPPY PRE-THANKSGIVING!
November 23, 2011

By Michael Erlewine (Michael@Erlewine.net)

Pies are being made, people are traveling or getting ready to travel, cooking is happening. I am in charge of making the stuffing and mashed potatoes.

Michael Anne is making tempeh-stuffed cabbage rolls. Margaret went out just before hunting season and harvested wild cranberries for her famous cranberry/orange-rind sauce.

As this little card from a previous holiday says: no turkey here.

I wish each of you the very best thanksgiving. This year's Thanksgiving is just before the New Moon, so don't try to push things. Relax and let it happen for a couple days. Fan it and cool it folks. It is OK to let things slide until after the New Moon on Friday. After that we can push onward.