Billboard: Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival at Gallup Park

Notes: Gary Grimshaw: This is a billboard. It was right downtown Ann Arbor in the bar zone. This is the sketch for it. We painted it in the Rainbow Production space and it was huge. And we painted it. The billboard company gave us the panels. And we painted it and they put it up and it was up for two months. It was funny, because we were so thrilled. It went up on a Sunday morning. We had been working on it for weeks. And they are puttin' this up. But the guy who showed up to put it up. He was ... it was too early for him or something. He almost fell down and broke his neck puttin' the thin up, you know. You can see the grid system on it? That's how we did it. We did the sketch. And then we got the big panels up and drew the grid on there and painted it. That was fun doing that.

It was based on this painting, a festival... I can't remember the artist who did it. Bruegal. And we used that as a model, but instead of native costumes, we put everybody in hippy garb. But that was just a sketch that we worked from, but the original painting was great.

Right after the festival, they pasted something else over it. It's gone.

I Want You Controlled
Notes: Gary Grimshaw: A Mike Brady poster. That's great. You know the whole problem at the time is that the black community and the hippie community was being flooded with heroin and downers and stuff. And it was a real problem. We knew where it was coming from. It was coming from the federal government, the FBI. They were just trying to shut us up. You know. And that was the idea behind this poster.
