

AWARD WINNING BLUES BOOK by Michael Erlewine
December 13, 2010

By Michael Erlewine (Michael@Erlewine.net)

My recent book "Blues in Black & White: The Landmark Ann Arbor Blues Festivals" (with book partners Stanley Livingston and Tom Erlewine) was just selected as one of the "2011 Michigan Notable Books" by the Michigan Department of Education. The announcement appears today and was covered by the Sunday Detroit Free Press and scores of other media.

I am currently working on two other books from that era, one on the "Ann Arbor Blues & Jazz Festivals" and a second one on "Ann Arbor in the Sixties."

If you have personal memories (Ann Arbor or elsewhere) of The Sixties (music, substances, art, literature, or just recollections, etc.) please feel free to comment here or email me privately or at Michael@Erlewine.net and your notes may appear in the book or your contribution credited.

It is available on Amazon.com
