

GRANDPA AND GRANDDAUGHTER
A Great Combination!
September 23, 2011

By Michael Erlewine (Michael@Erlewine.net)

Margaret and I are visiting some of my family here in Athens, Ohio. This is my younger (by three years) brother Dan Erlewine and his granddaughter Kate; two better friends I could not imagine. Kate wanted all of Dan's attention, but she let me have some. Dan and I played music together back in the 1960s in our group the Prime Movers Blues Band. Dan was our lead guitar player (and a great one) while I sang and played amplified Chicago-style harmonica. Mostly we played all over the Midwest, but we did spend the Summer of Love in San Francisco playing at all kinds of places, including opening for Cream at the Fillmore Auditorium. We also jammed with Jerry Garcia and all kinds of other stuff like that.

Dan is known to guitar aficionados all over the world for his many books and videos on how to make and repair guitars. He has built guitars for players like Albert King, Jerry Garcia, and many others.

This shot was taken at my niece Meredith's house, where she put on an incredible burrito bar for a bunch of our clan that gathered there for the event. Thanks Meredith for hosting this memorable get-together!

