

CRYSTAL TEARS

July 7, 2011

By Michael Erlewine (Michael@Erlewine.net)

I am caught these days in the rush of time, that old freight train rushing nowhere. We are in the countdown to my daughter's wedding with many guests converging on one point, and all our rooms full.

I am trying to get out and photograph but much intervenes. Also trying to start a series of YouTube videos presenting various short topics on astrology. And yada, yada, yada. So things are almost verging on hectic here.

I hope all is well out there with my friends in Facebook land.

This photo is very Hi-res for those who care to download it and you can see much in each dewdrop if you care to look.

