Ratdog, Mickey Hart at Warfield Theater - San Francisco, CA
Notes: Ratdog, @ the Warfield
A short time after my Family Dog Grand Opening poster was printed, I was called by Bill Graham Presents (I had sent BGP art director Arlene Owseichik some samples) to do a Ratdog Warfield poster, and then soon after, a Eddie Money Fillmore poster (62).

RATDOG REVUE story:

The artists who design posters for Bill Graham presents are usually offered tickets to the show, and I make it a habit to attend each of them. Ratdog Revue, as the band was called at the beginning, was special, because it was the first Greatful Dead incarnation since Jerry died.

It was a great show! But while we lived it up inside during the show, I spent all my money on drinks. So when we were walking out, worried about being broke in the city, I said to Dolly "Hey, maybe I could sell my signature, and pick up a few bucks! So I waited until they brought the box of the night's posters to the sidewalk to hand out the way they do. I got mine, whatta rude crush by a bunch of burly guys.

Then I noticed six officers standing over by their van, and wondered if it would be legal. I walked over to them and asked "Hey, can I sell my signature on the sidewalk?" One of them says "Are you the artist?" Yeah, I said. He reaches into the van and pulls out some of my Ratdog posters, "..of THIS" he said? I sheepishly nodded yes. "Well, will you sign ours?" I said I'd love to, and signed "To SF's finest!", on each one! They were stoked!

Then I turned back to the crowd all-full of confidence, and started to hawk my signature waving my Sharpy pen, calling "Signed by the artist, 5 bucks!" It was sort of hard to get anyone's attention near the box, and those who did, looked at me like I was crazed. Then a big Warfield bouncer came over and told me to stop and get out! I said I didn't have to, that it was a public place and "THEY" said it was OK! and I pointed at the six cops standing there, looking right at us. But the guy kept yelling at me, and I decided to let it go, not wanting to have word get back to BGP about it. So I walked down the sidewalk a little and it seemed a lot mellower than back at the mob scene. People were walking away looking at the posters, so I started waving my pen and offering my siggy again. It was darker, so some people were frightened, thinking I was a Market Street loony. I looked around and there were other loonies. A guy with a poster stopped and begged me to sign saying he didn't have any money. I signed the back. No one else believed I was the artist, so we turned the corner with nothing to show for all my efforts. We walked to the lot in back of the theatre, where, at the gate, I was panhandled by a street beggar. "Here", I said giving him my last dollar, "...now you've got more money than me!" and walked into the lot. There were thirty or so people waiting, I found out, because a car was blocking the entrance to the garage. Then I looked and saw that it was OUR car! And then when I went to open the door I discovered that I had locked my keys inside! The attendants called for a locksmith, saying they couldn't open it themselves. It seemed like forever for the locksmith to arrive. There we were, standing around with all these people holding posters...so I told Dolly "Hey, what the heck, I'm gonna work the crowd!" So I held up my pen and announced again, "Ratdog posters signed by the artist - five bucks!" People finally went for it! I signed them on a hood of a car. Some people questioned who I was, thinking I was scamming, so I took out my driver's license, and that made more people want the signature. A few people examined the license, looked at me, and then walked away saying they still didn't believe it! By the time I was making a little cash, a street hustler came by selling two wrinkly Ratdog posters. I gave him four bucks each for them. After working the parking lot and the lock guy still hadn't showed up, I walked over to the gate and started getting people that were still streaming down the sidewalk from the Warfield. I was getting a lot of customers, but had to show my license every time, so I just started waving IT! After a few minutes, the guy who had panhandled me before, who was still standing there, leaned over to me and said "Hey man, you're doin' better than I am!" and, after watching my technique some more, whispered "I'm gonna get me a pen too!" I'm sure he worked some of the subsequent shows. The locksmith truck finally showed up and everyone finally could get his or her cars out, and we drove off the lot with 50 bucks cash! We felt safer without being broke, and it was an experience I wouldn't have missed for anything. -- Jim Phillips
