

WORTH 1000 WORDS
October 17, 2011

By Michael Erlewine (Michael@Erlewine.net)

It states in the dharma teachings that listening to a dharma teacher or reading the sacred dharma texts is not the only way to learn the dharma. There is also what is called "The Lama of Appearances," through which the natural world around us displays by its very nature (and also points out) this same dharma.

If a photo is worth a thousand words, as they say, this recent photo of a Morning Glory clearly speaks volumes.

